NINYA CHECKOVICH- Designer and producer of this program.*

They stare defeat in the face and deny it the ability to touch them.

Where fatigue would make the average person collapse,
it makes them work harder to push on.

Pain that would leave anyone else cringing, unable to compete, may slow them down, but never stops them.

They are much like robots.
Their minds often say stop,
but their bodies almost mechanically keep going.

A stubborn pride will never allow them to quit.

They can be defeated, but never beaten.

They can be knocked down, but never stopped.

They can be pushed backward,
but never turned around.

They may sometimes lose the battle but they are proud just to know they put up one brave fight.

Some call them fools
to push themselves,
often till they can barely walk,
and most times having nothing to show for it.

At least nothing that anyone,
but they can see.

But they are not fools.

They are a very special kind of people.

They are the foundation of a strong America, of Russia, of Canada, or whatever country in which they can be found.

For they are the amateur athlete.
